BACKGROUND

Fluid mechanics is a fascinating subject that deals with the simple to complex phenomena encountered in nature as well as industry. It becomes extremely important to understand the details of fluid flow and heat transfer characteristics occurring in many practical applications that helps to design real systems. The proposed short term course is designed to enhance and strengthen the basic knowledge on theoretical concepts as well as measurement techniques in fluid mechanics. It is aimed to familiarize the participants with advanced topics that include novel techniques of measurements in flow systems, computational fluid flow and heat transfer and other research topics such as microfluidics, atomization and spray, hydrodynamic instabilities, etc.

COURSE CONTENT

- Foundations of fluid mechanics
- Introduction to computational fluid dynamics
- Measurements in fluids and thermal engineering
- Viscous flows over external surfaces
- Viscous internal flows
- Introduction to turbulent flows
- Hot-wire anemometry and LDV
- Particle Image Velocimetry (PIV)
- Multiphase flows, interfacial flows
- Microfluidics
- Atomization and spray
- Introduction to hydrodynamic instabilities
